H1 FY23 Results Analysis

RentPay making good progress with ARPU and customers

Rent.com.au Limited (ASX:RNT) is a purpose-led company seeking to empower home renters through their technology platform and a growing number of aligned transactional services. The company has reported H1 FY23 revenue of $1.43m, down 12.6% on the previous corresponding period (pcp) and below our forecast for $1.95m for the half. Underlying EBITDA was a loss of $0.97m, compared with $0.77m in H1 FY22. The EPS loss for the period was flat year on year. The decline in revenue was almost entirely attributable to weaker advertising conditions in the new homes market. Advertising revenue declined 35.5% to $0.53m. Renter products revenue was up year-on-year as was revenue from the RentPay platform. The core Rent.com.au business delivered its 5th consecutive half of positive EBITDA of $0.065m, although was down 50% on the pcp. The EBITDA loss from the RentPay platform was $1.04m. RentPay now has 4,212 active customers transacting payments on the platform, a 150% increase on the number of active customers a year ago. More than $1.7m in rent per week is now being processed by the platform. The company ended the half with $3.8m in cash, having completed its $2.9m rights issue in Q2. We have adjusted our FY23 forecasts to reflect the H1 actuals. Our base case DCF valuation remains unchanged at $103.4m or $0.20/share.

Business model

Rent.com.au generates revenues from advertising and from rental products, with revenues for the latter derived from RentCheck, which verifies a renter's identity and checks their record against the National Tenancy Database; from RentConnect, which delivers an integrated utility connection and $100 gift card to renters in conjunction with Origin; and from RentBond, RNT's "move now pay later" product, which helps renters bridge the gap from one rental property to another by financing their bond online. The company's growing RentPay app platform allows renters total financial flexibility in terms of how they make their rent payments while giving agents and landlords surety of payments on time. It also aligns Rent.com.au to the tenancy period, giving it an opportunity to engage with its audience for longer and extend the relationship into other revenue lines including insurance, telecommunications, loan and finance products.

Strong growth in RentPay ARPU

Rent.com.au delivered H1 FY23 revenues of $1.43m, a decline of 12.6% on the pcp due to seasonality and falling advertising sales impacted by the economic challenges in the new build home construction sector. Advertising accounts for half of the Rent.com.au portal revenue and its 35.5% half on half decline more than offset the gains made in renter products revenue and RentPay. The portal delivered its fifth consecutive positive EBITDA half year of $0.04m with group EBITDA a loss of $1.0m due to the $1.04m investment in RentPay. The transaction platform finished the half with 3,875 active customers transacting on the platform, and this has already passed 4,200. More than $1.7m in rent per week is now being paid via RentPay. Rent.com.au has also secured an Australian Credit Licence from ASIC for the platform paving the way for other financial transaction opportunities. Average Revenue Per User (ARPU) per month was $4.23 for the half and is currently tracking at $4.46 per month. This is ahead of our ARPU expectations for the half. We have incorporated H1 into our model, resulting in a downgrade to our FY23 forecasts but have left our forecasts largely unchanged in later years due to the better-than-forecast ARPU growth.

Base-case DCF valuation of $0.20/share

Our base-case DCF valuation for Rent.com.au is $0.20/share and is predicated on our expectation that RentPay will secure 5% of renters on its platform by FY24 and 20% by FY30. Evidence of faster-than-forecast take-up of RentPay together with the expansion of RentPay into other transactional products will likely result in our forecasts being revisited.

H1 FY23 Results Analysis

As flagged in the Q2 result, revenue has been impacted by seasonality and tougher advertising conditions with a 12.6% half-on-half decline in group revenue to $1.43m. Renter products revenue increased 10.1% to $0.75m and RentPay revenue also gained, but this was not enough to offset the 35.5% decline in advertising revenue. The core Rent.com.au business continued to build profitability, reporting EBITDA for the half of $0.04m, although down 50% on pcp due to seasonality. During the half, the site underwent a significant upgrade to align it and the RentPay site and improve performance. The company has now fully transitioned its RentConnect product to Origin Energy and customers that sign with Origin now have the option of receiving a one-off $100 gift card via Rent.com.au or if bill-smoothing via RentPay, can receive up to $5 a week or $260 a year in cash back for taking both electricity and gas from Origin. We expect this to continue to drive ARPU per month in the coming half.

Underlying EBITDA was a loss for the half of $1.0m as a result of the $1.04 investment in RentPay. Since launch more than $75m in rental payments have been processed by RentPay and the company has now passed 4,200 active users, having ended H1 with 3,875 active users. Further products are under development including mortgage builder to help renters transition into ownership, with an Australian Credit Licence awarded to allow the company to offer finance products. RentPay is also working towards delivering interest on wallet balances to incentivise renters to save through their RentPay wallets.

DCF Valuation

We are of the view that the discounted cashflow methodology is the most appropriate method for valuing Rent.com.au given the still early stage of its lifecycle. Our valuation uses a WACC of 13.5% (beta 1.5, terminal growth rate 2.2%) and derives a valuation of $104m or $0.20/share. Our forecasts in arriving at this valuation assume that RentPay will be used by 5% of the Australian rental market by FY24-end and 20% of the Australian rental market by FY30.
